i'm getin damn tired of people coming here with a wad of cash and trying to change the use of rhe land. saying the land is not capable of high value crops.

first off, the definition of high value crops seems to vary every few years.

let houses be put on farm ground and it is gone. so are the chances of a young fellow to have an opportunity at farming/ranching.

we need to set our own standards at county level.

get some local farmer/ranchers to come in once in awhile buy them a lunch and get their input. you just might be pleasantly surprised.

now we are about to get stuck with a subdivision out in right field that no one wants.

outside the urban growth boundary.

what brooks resources did for powell butte 40 years ago is immeasurable.

alot of young fellows sure were grateful.

so is the assessor's office

MANY THANKS
